Oklahoma 4-H'ers featured in fun, educational videos

by Gerri Ballard

Carter County 4-H Youth Development, Extension Educator

When many people found themselves working from home and limiting their time in public spaces during the COVID-19 pandemic, Oklahoma 4-H'ers were become internet sensations with fun and educational videos.

Cathleen Taylor, Oklahoma State 4-H specialist for leadership and civic engagement, said county educators, and later with state staff, collaborated to come up with a way to have educational content available to all club members and keep them engaged during this time of confinement, as well as encourage family involvement. Thus, the Oklahoma 4-H Virtual Clovers Facebook page was born.

"We wanted to come up with something that would keep our 4-H'ers busy and active, but we also wanted it to have an educational component and an opportunity to continue working on life skills," Taylor said. "We started off with posting two videos per day. Once summer officially started, we had club members posting one video a day to the new Facebook page, plus a Zoom day camp once a week. Now that school is back in session, we're continuing to post three videos per week. This is likely a project that resulted from COVID that won't go away anytime soon."

Taylor said the videos show activities that are generally hands on and geared toward strengthening 4-H project work. About 50 club members have made videos for Virtual Clovers, with some making more than one. In addition, members of the State 4-H Ambassadors, State Leadership Council, Healthy Living Ambassadors and STEM Innovators have made educational videos for the page.

The Oklahoma 4-H Virtual Clovers Facebook page has more than 1,100 followers and averages about 33,000 views per week.

"We also have nearly 7.3 million organic impressions. Organic impressions are the number of times any content from the page or about the page enters a person's screen through unpaid distribution," she said. "This includes posts, stories, check-ins and social information from people who interact with the page."

Several Virtual Clovers videos have gotten national attention when highlighted on the National 4-H Council's 4-H@Home website.

"In the spring when schools were closed but virtual learning was taking place, classroom teachers shared the videos for hands-on class activities," she said. "TSET of Pottawatomie County, other state 4-H programs, as well as county 4-H social media pages in Oklahoma shared the videos in an effort to spread the learning opportunities."

Special thanks go out to Kimbreley Davis, Liz Taylor, Heather Hodges, Sharon Stuckey, Jordan Nel, Dana Church, Halee Salmon, Cathy Allen, Jeff Sallee and Taylor for their leadership in making this Facebook page a success.
